Students Are Own Resource

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

You, the students, are the only individuals who can take advantage of the many opportunities offered through education. Your parents, teachers and other advisers can only provide guidance, encouragement and opportunity.

Although we all know the old saying, "you can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink," it is appropriate enough to be repeated here. All the advice, teaching and instruction are useless unless you, the students, are interested and willing to learn.

As the new school year approaches each student has an opportunity to start with a clean slate. Regardless of grade level you can look forward to new and interesting programs. In most cases the teachers also will be new. If you make the effort you can have a highly successful year. It is true that the learning of previous years is an important background for the new work but it also is true that there will be review and many opportunities to gain a full understanding of the needed background.

No student should be discouraged by his past performance. Look forward to new opportunities and another chance for success. If you have been successful you should look forward to continuing and even improving upon your past performance.

What can you do to plan for a successful year? The most important thing is your attitude. Learning can be enjoyable. It is interesting and can provide a great deal of satisfaction. Going to school should not be considered as an unpleasant chore. It is an important and valuable part of your life. More and more jobs require advanced training and education. Whatever career you may choose, you will find that you can go further and be more successful if you have a good education and training. Therefore you should try to learn as much as possible. Do a little extra. Your efforts will never be wasted.

Another important area is planning. Schedule your time properly. It is necessary to have time to do your homework as well as to relax and develop yourself physically and socially.

Homework should be done when it is assigned. Saving it up and waiting 'til the last minute only causes problems. Set aside a reasonable amount of time each day when you can spend an uninterrupted period to complete your work for the following day. You might discuss this with your parents.

Remember that you want to play with your friends. This is also important and time should be provided. If there are certain programs on television which you like, your schedule can be adjusted.

Approach the new school year with a fresh and enthusiastic outlook. Your parents and teachers will do everything they know to help you succeed. Only you can learn for yourself.
